New 'garden town' moves a step closer

A LOOK AHEAD: An impression of how the new development is expected to shape up once it is completed

Whitehall picks Gilston Park as site for development

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A 10,000-HOME garden town near Gilston is a stage nearer to being built after the Government backed proposals.

Ministers pledged £1.4 million of funding to deliver three garden towns nationwide, which includes a development the size of Hertford around Gilston, Hunsdon, Much Hadham and Eastwick.

Gavin Barwell, housing and planning minister, announced the Government's intentions on Monday, which included a further £6 million fund for 14 smaller garden villages to be built nationwide.

The announcement is good news for housing association Places For People, whose proposed Gilston Park Estate, colloquially known as Harlow North, has been included in East Herts Council's draft local plan.

Mary Parsons, Places For People director, said: "We welcome the Government's announcement and think it is great news for the area."

Growth

"These resources will help ensure the scale of housing growth identified across the three districts (East Herts, Harlow and Epping) is planned, coordinated and sustainable."

"It will (also help) bring the infrastructure and jobs as well as much needed homes."

"We welcome the acknowledgement and share the commitment to attain the highest quality development."

Ms Parsons previously said

GLIMPSE INTO THE FUTURE

An artist's impression of the proposed 'garden village' as produced by Places For People the development was needed to meet a need for housing and that infrastructure would be implemented to support it.

The Gilston Park Estate has long been opposed by Stop Harlow North, a pressure group whose members argue the site will destroy green belt land and cannot be supported by transport and hospital services.

While the Government support is a step forward it is not the end of the debate.

The plan could be signed off in March as part of East Herts Council's local plan.

Before then, however, an independent inspector will examine plans and could approve, refuse or ask East Herts Council to amend parts in a meeting.

Stop Harlow North says it hopes to have a member present to represent the group's views at the meeting.

CRIME SCENE: The cycle path in Arkwrights, Harlow

Man in the dock after stabbing

A MAN will appear in crown court this month, charged with attempted murder in Harlow on Christmas Day.

The 34-year-old male victim was stabbed in the neck as he walked along a cycle-path in Arkwrights, Harlow, just before 12.40pm on Sunday, December 25 and was rushed to hospital.

John-Paul Roberts, 42, of no fixed abode, was arrested and charged with attempted murder, possession of an offensive weapon and two counts of possession of a class A drug.

A spokesman from East Of England Ambulance Service said: "We had a call at 12.36pm and sent an ambulance and the Essex and Hertfordshire Air Ambulance."

Injuries

"We treated a man who had suffered severe neck injuries."

Essex Police confirmed the victim was airlifted to a London hospital for further treatment and was later discharged.

Mr Roberts, also known as John-Paul Brewer, Jon Roberts and Jon-Paul Roberts, appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates' Court on Saturday.

The class A drug charges include possession of diamorphine and possession of cocaine, both on Friday. The offensive weapon charge is for possessing a yellow coloured knife in Arkwrights, Harlow, on Sunday, December 25 with no lawful authority or reasonable excuse. He was remanded in custody and will appear at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday, January 27.

Opinion 'is evenly split over plan for homes'

SUNNY SIDE: The proposed development in Gilston Park Estate

Local views are divided over scheme to build garden town

THE FUTURE? The Government has backed plans for a garden town

THINGS TO COME: An artist's impression

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE Government's intention to create a 10,000-home garden town around Gilston has split local opinion.

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, and Jon Clempner, leader of Harlow Council, have spoken in support of Gilston Estate, a proposal put forward by housing association Places For People.

However, some residents have spoken out against the plan, while a poll conducted by Herts and Essex News and Media found 46 per cent of respondents were against, 44 per cent in favour and ten per cent preferring a smaller option.

Mr Halfon said: "This is incredibly important for the future of Harlow and it is another example of Government investment in our town."

"The important thing is that this is being run by Places For People, a housing association and not a developer. They are creating a development which will be sustainable with the environment."

Cllr Clempner said: "It will make a vital contribution to the regeneration of Harlow itself and will bring much needed infrastructure, including another Stort crossing. This is part of the four-legged stool of jobs, infrastructure, housing and skills that is coming together for a vibrant future for Harlow."

IN FAVOUR: MP Robert Halfon

Mark Prisk, MP for Hertford and Bishop's Stortford whose constituency covers Gilston, was unavailable for comment but has previously expressed concerns about the proposal.

Traffic issues

On the Harlow Star Facebook page Paul Slater wrote: "This equals carnage, traffic issues and sewage issues. There is no way the homes will be built for local people, the only winners are building companies and the Government."

And Heather Sagers said: "The simple fact is we need more homes to be built. But Princess Alexandra Hospital is struggling as it is, so another hospital would be needed."

"Put the infrastructure in place and more homes will be welcome."

But Robert Moore added: "A very bad idea. The scale of it is unsustainable."

Latest decision 'not the end' for protesters

THE leader of Stop Harlow North said the group committed to fighting the Gilston Park Estate will not stop.

However, Spike Hughes admitted that the Government's backing of a plan to create a 10,000 home garden town around villages to Harlow's north was a blow.

He said: "My feeling is that it is unfortunate as it adds further credibility to the whole project."

"But we have not given up. The local plan has not been signed off, this has nothing to do with the issue, [and by saying it is] they are putting the cart before the horse. I think people have misunderstood what this means. The plan has not been approved."

"There are reports in the press that Conservative MPs are asking for any green belt to be paused until after Brexit negotiations."

Final approval to create the Gilston Park Estate could be given in March if East Herts Council include the proposals in its local plan.

For years Stop Harlow North has bitterly protested any plans to build on greenfield land around Gilston, Hunsdon and Much Hadham. At a heated meeting last month members of the group urged residents to write to the council in opposition before an independent inspector examines the plans.

This is in the hope that the inspector feels there is enough opposition from the group to warrant a member to be present at a meeting.

Speaking before Christmas, Mr Hughes said the pressure group would turn attention to lobbying central Government as he doubted East Herts Council would make changes to the plan. After the Government's announcement on Monday Mr Hughes, also a parish councillor for Eastwick and Gilston, continued: "This was not unexpected."

"They have allocated £6million for 14 sites, so all East Herts is going to get is half a million. It is another step in the assessment of the whole thing."

"Hopefully when the Government look into it they will see that it is not locally led as 95 per cent of local people are opposed to it."

Town getting ready start its 70th birthday celebrations

Support offered to groups planning events to mark the occasion

CELEBRATION plans have been announced ahead of Harlow celebrating its 70th birthday this year.

Harlow Council will support community groups who are planning on organising their own projects to celebrate the occasion.

So far nearly 70 people and/or organisations have expressed an interest in being involved.

Annual events such as Guy Fawkes Night will also be given a special 70th anniversary theme which will coincide with Harlow Town Park's 60th anniversary.

Councillor Jon Clempner, leader of Harlow Council, said: "We want 'Harlow is 70' to be a celebration of Harlow, its people and its places and for residents to take pride in their town."

History

"We will be proudly celebrating Harlow's history, community and its diversity and looking ahead to the next 70 years where more history will be made."

"The response and ideas we have received so far from the community has been fantastic and shows that everyone wants to work together to celebrate 'Harlow is 70'."

"We will keep everyone updated as events and projects are confirmed and we are open to more ideas and suggestions."

"We are also looking at what we can do to support the occasion as part of our budget [for 2017]."

"One theme for 2017 will be raising civic pride in Harlow so we are also looking at events and projects which tied into this and carry on in the future."

Graphic design students at Harlow College worked together with Harlow Council and alongside Harlow-based companies, Blue Pig Creative and Hot Mash Creative, to design an official logo to symbolise the celebrations.

On Friday, December 16, some of the concepts and ideas

IN THE BEGINNING: Town planner Sir Frederick Gibberd in 1947, when Harlow was designated a new town developed were reviewed ahead of the final logo being unveiled in 2017.

With Harlow first being designated a new town on March 25, 1947, it has since seen some important firsts including having the first pedestrianised shopping precinct in the town centre and being home to the country's first residential tower block called The Lawn in 1951.

All Smiles for Disney trip of a lifetime

THE STAFF and children at Smiles Montessori Pre-School and Smiles Montessori Newhall have made a five-year-old girl's dreams come true by raising £3,880 for her to go on a once in a lifetime trip to Florida.

The children took part in various activities on behalf of five-year-old Carmela-Rose Harkin who has been diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukaemia after becoming poorly in September 2013.

Carmela-Rose's dream is to visit the princesses at Walt Disney World in Florida.

Deputy manager of the Bush Fair nursery, Hollie Cox, said: "Through all of the children and staff's hard work and efforts, as well as the generosity of parents and local people, the nurseries combined raised a staggering £3,880 in total."

"This amount has helped achieve the final amount that the family needed for their once in a lifetime trip."

"The children took part in mini triathlons, danceathons, a keep fit class, teddy bears picnic, a funky hair day, and a princess day in honour of Carmela-Rose."

Owner of both Montessori nurseries, Julia Jeffrey, who knows Carmela-Rose and her family, is regularly involved within the community.

"Julia always tries to get involved with the local community and charity events in our home town," continued Ms Cox.

"She knows the family and felt that she could help them achieve this dream with the support of local businesses and the families that attend both nurseries."

"Everyone at Smiles is very proud of what they have helped to achieve and are very excited to present the family with the cheque."

Emma Byrne, Carmela-Rose's aunt, visited the children at Smiles Montessori to say thank you for all their efforts.

Carmela-Rose's mother, Amanda Harkin, said that she could not believe how well the children had done and thanked them all by sending a bunch of flowers.

TALENT: Charmaine Kangwende won St Mark's school show

Teen shows star power at school's talent event

CHARMAINE Kangwende proved she has the voice and stage presence to win the talent show at St Mark's West Essex Catholic School.

The 15-year-old singer was crowned champion from 40 entrants from which 13 were chosen to sing, dance or perform at the secondary in Tripton Road, Harlow.

Teachers were on judging duty while student Keenan Krikic was compere. Dancer Tayo Rajitola and singer Olivia Wiley were runners up.

The evening also saw the first public performance of St Mark's Gospel Choir, conducted by internationally renowned choral director Ken Burton.

Elaine Heaphy, headteacher, said: "The show was a great success and demonstrated the range of talent of our pupils."

"I am grateful to teachers Shannon Hughes and Natasha Coplestone-Crow for all their hard work in organising such an entertaining evening and we were particularly delighted to have had Ken Burton there leading our newly formed choir."

Trust makes £454k profit from car parking charges

Council says issue is caused by 'chronic underfunding' of the NHS

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE NHS trust in charge of Princess Alexandra Hospital raked in hundreds of thousands of pounds in parking fees last year.

In 2015/16 the hospital made £830,977 from its car parks offset by running costs of £376,753 – meaning a bumper profit of £454,224.

The trust said all profit is put back into staff and direct patient care, but the Labour leader of Harlow Council Jon Clempner said it was unfair for costs to be pushed back onto patients.

The figure raised is the lowest in four years, and is almost £100,000 less than the amount made in 2012/13.

Councillor Clempner said the issue had been caused by 'chronic underfunding'.

Charging

"Hospitals charging patients and visitors for parking is obviously a concern, both for patients themselves, and the knock-on effect it has on local residents with parking spilling over into areas around the hospital," he said.

"Of greater concern however is the chronic underfunding of our health service which makes it necessary for hospital trusts to explore other sources of income."

"The PAH urgently needs funding for ongoing services, investment in the current infrastructure, and in the medium-term a new health facility in or near Harlow." Earlier this week, an investigation by the Press Association revealed hospitals around the country had made a record £160million from car parks last year.

The figures, released via a mass Freedom of Information request, found a five per cent increase on the previous year.

Speaking to the Daily Mirror, Katherine Murphy, chief executive of the Patients Association, said parking fees needed to be scrapped.

"The shocking reality about car parking charges is they are taking money from the sick and vulnerable to top up NHS coffers," she said.

"This is not what parking charges should be used for."

"The NHS is clearly underfunded, but the onus on meeting the funding crisis should not be shouldered by the sick, injured and vulnerable."

"We are not talking about insignificant amounts of money, either. It is alarming that trusts think it is OK to charge people so much money for visiting a hospital, as it makes patients question the values of the people leading the organisation."

"We take a very clear line that car parking fees need to be scrapped or strictly capped."

Authority accused of botching road repairs

ESSEX County Council's highways team has been accused of doing a repair worse than a 'bodge' job in Ladyshot.

Residents of the Harlow estate previously demanded Essex Highways took faster action after the footpath and kerb were left cracked for months after it was reported.

Urgent

County Hall released a statement last month to say an urgent repair job would be completed and the surface has now been covered with tarmac in a temporary measure.

But resident Chris Buck approached The Star to say he was unhappy with how the repair has been handled. He said: "It is already deteriorating."

"There is doing a temporary repair, there is doing a bodge and then there is this."

"This is utterly terrible."

"Do these jobs actually get verified that they have been done to an acceptable standard?"

A spokesperson for Essex Highways responded: "Safety is always our priority when completing repair works, and our engineers carried out this temporary repair to allow residents to continue to use the footpath safely."

"Work to repair this footpath permanently will go ahead in due course."

PUPILS: Church Langley Community School Choir

Light up a Life services attract more than 400

MORE THAN 400 people have gathered to celebrate the lives of family and friends at two remembrance services held at St Clare Hospice as part of their Light up a Life service.

The Hastingwood-based charity held nine services across the festive season starting in Bishop's Stortford on Sunday, November 20 before arriving at the hospice itself on Wednesday, December 14 and Saturday, December 17.

The Light up a Life service provides people with the opportunity to remember those who will be missed over the festive season.

Chief executive of St Clare Hospice, Tanya Curry, said: "It was once again a privilege to welcome our patients, supporters and their families and friends to our two Light up a Life services."

"More than 400 people gathered with the whole St Clare family to remember their loved ones in a special and uplifting way."

"The heartfelt readings and wonderful music from Harlow's Salvation Army Band and Church Langley Community School's choir added to a very special service.

"We know that Christmas time can be one of the most difficult times to lose a loved one. Many of us may be facing our first Christmas without a loved one, and others may be facing the prospect of their last precious Christmas with someone."

Understand

"Participating in the Light up a Life service offers a way to remember and celebrate the lives of those who we love, but can no longer see, in the company of others who understand."

Ms Curry added: "The highlight of the event was the lighting of our beautiful tree – with each light representing the life and memory of someone dear."

"Each guest then placed their lighted candle under the tree in a moving gesture of love and remembrance for those they have lost."

Paralympian Anne is 'humiliated' on train

Sports star on 3-hour journey with no disabled toilet

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

PARALYMPIAN Anne Wafula-Strike said she was left 'humiliated', on a three-hour train journey where no disabled toilet was available.

With the only facility out of order, the athlete was forced to wet herself on a CrossCountry service from Nuneaton to Stansted Airport, as she travelled back to her Harlow home.

The competitor-turned-disability sport ambassador, who has no use of her legs, said: "It was terrible that this ended up happening in this day and age."

"I was travelling back from a British Athletics board meeting and I got on a train that had a disabled toilet, but that was out of order."

"I spoke to the ticket master and she said to use a toilet on a station between Nuneaton and Peterborough. But there was nobody there to help me."

Accident

"I ended up having an accident."

Ms Wafula-Strike competed for Kenya in athletics events at the Athens 2004 games and attained British citizenship in 2006 having lived in the UK since 2000.

She continued: "Having a toilet to use is a basic human right. As a disabled person we are made more disabled when there is not proper access."

"I was humiliated. It has really affected my confidence."

A CrossCountry spokesman said: "We are extremely sorry for the circumstances of Ms Wafula-Strike's recent journey with us." Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, who is also disabled, expressed his displeasure in a strongly worded email to Andy Cooper, the firm's managing director.

Mr Cooper said the train she was on would usually not have been used but more modern models were being repaired at the time after hitting cows that

Public anger as poo-filled bins go uncollected

Refuse refusal causes issue for council

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

BIN men are turning their noses up at recycling containers which are frequently contaminated with dog poo.

Residents complained after recycling bins in Little Grove Field were not collected earlier this month due to the excrement. This led to rubbish piling high and reports of flytipping.

Harlow councillor Danny Purton apologised but said: "Contaminated recycling is a common problem and a particular issue with bins in this location."

Emptied

"The recycling bins were contaminated with items which could not be recycled including lots of dog mess and were not emptied as planned on Tuesday, December 6."

"We apologise to residents for the time it did take to empty these bins in the end. As soon as we were made aware of the issue by a resident on Thursday, December

NOT WORTH BINNING: Recycling bins in Little Grove Field, Harlow, were found contaminated

15 we asked the contractor to empty the bins and clean up the area, which was carried out the next day."

Mr Purton added: "It is important that people recycle the right items and we reduce contamination to avoid extra cost for all council taxpayers."

"We are reviewing the use of these particular bins as contamination is a regular problem."

Little Grove Field resident Jason Fryer took photographs of the rubbish piled outside his flat block and commented that missed bin collection is not an isolated problem.

He said before it was removed: "These bins have not been emptied due to contamination, yet the normal bin squad has not been out to collect them."

"The surrounding houses use our block to flytip. Dog walkers even use them as poo bins. Personally, I do not use them as they are always full and in a mess like this. Waste collection in Harlow is getting beyond a joke."

REMEMBER WHEN: Busy Bees held a summer fun day for Winston's Wish

Nursery's year of support nets £1,000 for bereavement cause

A NURSERY has raised nearly £1,000 for a childhood bereavement charity in a year-long partnership.

Busy Bees based at Harlow Business Park held several events in 2016 for Winston's Wish including a summer fun day and raised £930 in donations.

Louise Christie, nursery manager, said: "We're thankful our parents are so supportive and have got behind the cause throughout the year."

"Winston's Wish is a fantastic charity and not one person, especially a child, should have to suffer the loss of a family member or sibling in silence."

"For anyone unfortunate enough to suffer a bereavement in their family, the vital support the charity provides can help to rebuild lives." She added: "The staff and children have really enjoyed taking part in the fundraising throughout the year and we are extremely grateful to the parents and all our staff here at Busy Bees for getting behind this campaign and supporting a charity which provides an invaluable service."

Hampers for the homeless has been man's winter plan

Sleeping bags, food and clothing help those struggling on streets

A MAN has been helping those in need by creating and donating Christmas hampers for the homeless.

Bharat Thakrar, 26, from Harlow, has been fundraising since he was a teenager and decided that this winter he wanted to help Streets2Homes, a Harlow-based charity providing support for homeless people.

Items included in Mr Thakrar's Christmas hampers included food and drink as well as warm clothing.

"I am really pleased with the final outcome and it was a joy and pleasure doing all this for a great cause in order to help others and the homeless," said Mr Thakrar.

"The staff at the charity were so impressed and grateful for the fundraising efforts I made and the amount I donated. I tried to meet the specific needs of the charity, in particular by providing sleeping bags, clothing for men and women to help during the winter period like hats and scarves, in addition to food and drinks etc."

"They said all items donated will help so many people."

Knowing that his donations will help to make a difference to

FUNDRAISER: Bharat Thakrar's hampers included food, winter clothing and sleeping bags

the lives of many, fundraising is something held very close to Mr Thakrar's heart.

He said: "This was the reason I was doing this for - to help spread joy and happiness to others and the homeless during the Christmas period and into the New Year. I enjoy doing volunteering work and making a difference in society. Having the ability to help those less fortunate than ourselves and hopefully being able to provide a sense of hope for families and individuals is what motivates me."

Mr Thakrar would like to say thank you to the stock manager

Gary at Argos in The Harvey Centre for offering sleeping bags at a discounted price once he heard of the work.

Alongside his Christmas hampers, Mr Thakrar has also set up a Just Giving page whereby he exceeded his initial £200 target.

He continued: "It is important to understand that the issues faced in society unfortunately are ongoing and help is required all year round.

"Therefore, any funds that continue to be raised will be used for the same purposes and all funds will be donated to charity."

Positive

Over the years, Mr Thakrar has been committed to making a positive impact on the lives of others from a very young age.

He said: "From the age of 13 to 18 I did work for young people in my local community. I was elected by young people in the community to sit on the Harlow Youth Council and our main objective was to represent the voice of young people and make a real impact in our community. One of our greatest achievements was setting up a skate park and a youth café."

However, perhaps one of Mr Thakrar's biggest fundraising projects was when he went on a life-changing trip to Tanzania to help in a project called Making Education More Relevant.

Mr Thakrar left his job and put his professional qualification on hold to spend three months volunteering.

Extension of bail for castle pair

TWO suspects arrested in connection with the death of Summer Grant have had their bail extended again.

The seven-year-old girl died on March 26 after a bouncy castle she was playing on in Harlow Town Park blew away in high winds.

Summer, who lived in Norwich, was taken to hospital and died from her injuries, prompting a police appeal.

A 24-year-old woman and 27-year-old man, both from Cambridgeshire, were arrested on suspicion of manslaughter by gross negligence.

The previous bail expired last week but Essex Police confirmed they have both been rebailed until February 24.

Driver sight put to test

SIXTY-three drivers have had their licences revoked this year after failing roadside eyesight tests in the county.

Essex Police considered the motorists to pose a risk on the road as they failed the simple test of reading a sign from 20 metres away. The 2016 figure is up from last year when 49 drivers were forced to hand over their licences. This year officers visited 226 drivers involved in collisions where eye sight issues may have been a factor.

■ GHOSTS

Show us the proof of ghosts

I HAVE been following with interest the debate re the existence or not of the Law Of Attraction.

I am firmly in the sceptical camp but I'd like to go back to the original story where Charlene Smith claimed that she had begun to experience icy chills, a tickling sensation and also claimed to see figures around the property which showed up in photographs.

Surely if such photos exist they would have been published along with the article so they could be scrutinised by the public, and more importantly experts to establish their veracity.

Why have we not seen them?

■ DRIVING

Drivers must watch weather

AS the fog descends on Harlow three types of driver appears.

One the total idiot who drives with no lights on at all

Two the half idiot who only has side lights on fortunately these are in the minority, and the third kind that have the legal amount of lighting for the weather conditions.

■ PRESS FREEDOM

The stakes are incredibly high

THE furore surrounding press regulation has been around for many years but it has been taken to a new level.

Star reporter Sam Meadows identifies the dangers for newspapers, particularly local ones, if they were to be subject to S40 of the Crime and Courts Act. It cannot be right that

THIS Heron, resting on a chimney, was snapped by Harlow Star reader Roy Knight.

If you have a photograph you have taken in or around Harlow which you would like to be featured in the Star, email a high resolution, landscape copy in

JPEG format, along with a brief description of where and when it was taken, to kerigh.palmer@hertssexnews.co.uk

Please remember to include your name and address and caption your mail subject box "Star POW" newspapers would have to pay legal costs for complainants in libel cases even if newspapers win, and it is daft the law would only apply to print journalism and not to the online version. That is hardly a level playing field.

Cynics will say newspapers have got away with untruths over the years and will have little sympathy but what they often overlook is that newspapers are not in existence to be popular.

One of their most important roles is to hold organisations and people to account.

This legislation would place another big burden on the likes of the Mercury, the Observer and the Harlow Star.

As with many other media organisations this trio have had significant staff cutbacks in the last ten to 15 years.

This has been shown particularly in the gradual diminution of magistrate court reports and council meetings.

Decisions affecting council tax payers are not always covered while those who have committed crimes have escaped publicity in that they have not been named.

Many towns in the UK have lost papers and it is likely that if this legislation comes in it will force many others to go to the wall.

The stakes are high.

David Rimmer

Make your voice heard

WITH all the hyperbole about Brexit, the serious threat to the country's free press, appears to have fallen under the nations radar. Press freedom is something that is the hallmark of democracy. Something that many folks don't seem to bat an eyelid about, but would be the first to complain if it was lost.

Under the proposals, our local and national press, could well be restricted or curtailed in what they report, if they don't sign up to the government backed press regulator. As I understand it they would be forced to pay legal costs for complainants in libel cases, even if they win the case. This clearly is inherently wrong and goes against any notion of justice and does not bode well for the future.

Yes the press both national and local, must be made accountable for any thing their reporters write, but this has swung the pendulum back into the realm of a state-controlled press.

Help end the nurse pay gap

THE Royal College of Nursing is asking your readers to sign a petition (www.rcn.org.uk/nursingcounts) demanding an end to the 1% pay cap on nurses.

There are currently 24,000 nurse vacancies across the UK, including many in the Eastern region. Our NHS is already struggling to cope with hospital bed shortages, long waiting times and under-staffed wards.

More than ever, we need to encourage people to consider nursing as a career and ensure we retain those already in the profession. The evidence is strong that nurse numbers have a direct impact on patient health.

It was recently announced that MPs would receive a 1.4% pay rise and yet the Government has imposed a pay 'glass ceiling' on NHS staff who work long and unsociable shifts to try to keep the nation healthy.

Nurses must be wondering exactly what they have to do to merit a pay award which reflects the value of their work.

We need 100,000 signatures otherwise nurses' pay will not be considered for debate by Parliament.

Herts & Essex rail fares are among the 'region's highest'

Area's season tickets are 'like dialling premium rate phone line'

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsessexnews.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS have likened the cost of commuting from towns like Harlow and Bishop's Stortford to calling a premium-rate number.

Research carried out by the Campaign For Better Transport found commuters in Bishop's Stortford pay on average 19p per minute for a journey into London – the 13th highest in the region.

Travellers in Harlow pay the eighth highest rate of 20p per minute, while Stevenage topped the list with journeys costing a hefty 27p per minute.

The findings have been published as fare rises of a national average of 2.3 per cent come into effect.

Lianna Etkind, public transport campaigner at the Campaign for Better Transport (CBT), said: "Wages remain stagnant and trains continue to be hopelessly overcrowded, so commuters are rightly angry at annual fare rises when they see little or no improvement in the service they receive."

"Many commuters are now being charged at a similar level to a premium rate phone number for their season tickets and

ALL ABOARD: Greater Anglia increased its fares by an average 1.8 per cent this week, but that was less than the national figure are left feeling equally as fleeced.

Fairer

"It's high time the Government introduced a fairer ticketing system that actively encouraged rail travel, not penalised people for choosing to take the train."

An annual season ticket from Bishop's Stortford to London costs £4,044 and one from Harlow costs £3,496.

A spokesman for Great Northern raised discrepancies over the figures, and said 97p of every pound goes back into running and improving services.

A spokesman for the Rail Delivery Group, which represents operators, said: "CBT appears to be suggesting that because a journey is fast, it is worse value for money, a logic not many passengers would agree with.

"At £5.15, the average price paid per journey on a season ticket, the increases to which are set by Government, is actually lower in real terms than at the turn of the century."

"Money from fares is helping to support the £50billion-plus Railway Upgrade Plan to give people new trains and faster, more reliable, more punctual journeys." A spokeswoman for Greater Anglia said the company had raised fares by 1.8 per cent, less than the national average.

"We offer great value off-peak fares such as advance, super off-peak day return, off-peak day return, Duo and Kids for £2 deals, as well as Group Save discounts," she added.

"We will be introducing a range of new fares and ticket options including Flex Carnet tickets offering discounts for customers travelling the same route regularly but not every day, and advance purchase ticket prices available up to ten minutes before travel during the course of the new franchise."

Investing

"Over the next year we are also rolling out a number of initiatives to tackle key customer priorities."

"We are investing £5million to make our existing trains more reliable and introducing 18 additional trains in the summer to provide extra seats at peak times."

"In addition, season tickets can now be issued as smartcards, providing a more convenient and resilient ticket for our most regular customers."

Care service has made progress

A SERVICE which provides care to those with reduced mobility in their homes has made improvements, according to the Care Quality Commission (CQC).

Essex Cares West, which operates in Harlow, was rated 'inadequate' by the health watchdog in March, but a follow-up inspection found it has improved.

The report, published on Thursday, December 22, rated the service as 'requires improvement' but noted the progressions made. The service was rated 'good' in the categories of effective, caring and well-led.

Keir Lynch, the chief executive of Essex Cares Ltd, said: "We are delighted with the results which have shown 'significant progress' in the six months between the inspection in March and when the CQC visited us again at the end of September."

"We are pleased that our services are now rated 'good' across all regions in the categories for being well-led, effective and caring with improvements in all categories."

"The inspectors reflected that 'significant progress' has been made. Most importantly, the fantastic feedback from customers is pleasing."

He added: "We are looking forward to the opportunity to demonstrate that all the improvements are sustainable and justify the CQC's assessment that we are well-led in all areas."

TRACK STAR: Laura Kenny will get a CBE

Special honours for stars

SOME of our favourite Olympic heroes will receive a special award from the Queen.

Olympians such as Andy Murray, Mo Farah and Laura Kenny have featured on the Queen's New Year's Honours list – a list which awards people for their achievements.

Both distance runner Farah, and tennis player Murray, will receive knighthoods and now be known as Sir, while husband and wife cyclists Laura and Jason

Kenny will be awarded a CBE, also known as Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

The whole of Great Britain's women's hockey team will also receive awards alongside gymnast Max Whitlock and boxer Nicola Adams.

Outside of sport, individuals such as Victoria Beckham will be awarded for her work in fashion and charity.

Yet it's not just the work of sports stars and celebrities being celebrated with there being heroes closer to home being awarded too.

This year 1,197 people will be honoured by the Queen with ten per cent of awards going to people for their work in education.

All of those who feature on the Queen's honours list will attend a ceremony held at Buckingham Palace and receive their awards from the Queen herself.

A matter of faith

“Science will always and ultimately answer all the ‘how’ questions, but what they can’t and won’t is the big ‘why’ question”

SPIRITUAL QUEST: Liam Neeson stars as a priest who loses faith in Silence

For the past decade, his action hero status has dominated, but Liam Neeson's two new films are contemplative yarns. He tells Susan Griffin about his quest for enlightenment

HARDLY a day goes by when someone doesn't ask Liam Neeson to quote the words, 'I will find you', from 2008's action-thriller Taken.

Even his two sons, Michael, 21, and Daniel, 20, have been guilty of making this request – despite their nonchalance over their dad's status as an action star.

“Oh, that's cool,” Neeson, 64, mimics, when asked what they make of his reputation. “That's all you get,” adds the towering actor (he's 6ft 4in), looking slim in a black suit.

He was in his mid-50s when he made Taken, and admits he was surprised to find himself suddenly hailed one of Hollywood's new action heroes.

“Totally; are you joking?” he exclaims with a laugh, pushing his glasses back to his precarious position on his forehead.

“That first Taken was [going] straight to video, I thought. Seriously, I'm not tagging how the film was made, because I think it's a real cool little European thriller, but then it became this success. It was quite embarrassing, really.”

After two sequels, he insists those movies ‘are finished with’, but he's still sent ‘action stuff’.

“I said to my agent, ‘do they know what I'm doing? I am?’ Maybe another 18 months and then that's it, because I think audiences start going, ‘Oh c'mon!’ But we'll see,” he adds, his familiar, gravelly voice almost inaudible at times.

“I like doing all that fighting stuff, and it's fun to train for that. I don't do my own stunts; people think I do but I leave it to the professionals.”

The actor, who was born in Ballymena, Northern Ireland, to a cook and caretaker, only recently wrapped on the action movie The Commuter, due out next year, and today is cradling a thermos he was given at the wrap party.

What's the film about?

He pauses for a moment, before stating with a grin: “St happens on a train!”

“Strangely enough, it's [set on] a train that goes past my house in upstate New York. but you know the movie industry... ‘Let's shoot it in a studio in London!’”

Right now though, Neeson's busy promoting two movies that were both released on New Year's Day.

The first is Silence, Martin Scorsese's passion project. An epic two hours and 40-minutes long, it tells the story of two 17th century Portuguese priests (Andrew Garfield and Adam Driver), who travel to Japan in search of their missing mentor, Father Cristovao Ferreira (Neeson), and to spread the gospel of Christianity.

Based on Shusaku Endo's 1966 award-winning novel, it examines the spiritual and religious question of God's silence in the face of human suffering – and proved a tough sell, even for someone of Scorsese's ilk.

“There are 29 producers credited in this film... 29!” exclaims Neeson, who also worked with the veteran film-maker on 2002's Gangs Of New York.

“I heard even two weeks before I went out to join them, one of the investors pulled their money out. I think there was a big scrambling about to get extra finances.”

Neeson recalls delving into Endo's tome before production.

“It was painfully dry, I had trouble finishing it,” he admits. “And then Marty gave me the script that he and [screenwriter] Jay Cocks had been working on, and it suddenly came alive.”

He's only in a few scenes, but his approach was no different to when he's shouldering an entire movie.

“I kind of personally like it, because they've been labouring away for seven or eight months and you come in for three weeks, do a little bit and go off, and the characters are talking about you for the rest of the film!” Neeson confesses.

He questions his interpretation of faith ‘all the time’.

“In fact, when I came back from shooting Silence, I immediately went into Richard Dawkins' The God Delusion and various books on atheism,” he reveals.

“I'd been with a Jesuit priest for research and done quite a bit with Father Daniel Berrigan in the Eighties for [1986 movie] The Mission and I was intrigued by all of that, but then read an article in this science journal and it just tweaked something else in my brain.

“I thought, let's leave God aside for a second and see what science has to say about all of this, and the inroads they are making into this stuff in here,” he continues, tapping his head.

“It's very, very interesting. Science will always and ultimately answer all the ‘how’ questions, but what they can't and won't is the big ‘why’ question.”

The other new title he's promoting – A Monster Calls, a stunning film written by Patrick Ness and directed by J.A. Bayona – also examines human suffering, albeit from the viewpoint of a young lad, Conor, played by Lewis MacDougall, who's coming to terms with his mother's terminal illness.

“It's an extraordinary book, and certainly ranks up there with Oscar Wilde's fairytales and Grimm Brothers, all those classics,” observes Neeson, who plays the titular monster; an ancient tree who comes to life and acts as a guide for Conor by telling stories.

“This kid has no one to turn to. Even his mother isn't telling the truth and he's desperate to be told, as kids are; kids can handle it,” notes the actor, who lost his wife, actress Natasha Richardson, following a tragic skiing accident in 2009.

“Treat them like adults. Tell them the big issues in life if they come up. Easter Bunny, Santa Claus; it starts there.”

He has nothing but praise for his young co-star MacDougall and Bayona, who also directed

The Impossible and The Orphanage.

“I loved how he nurtures these performances from these kids. The only other person I've seen do that was Steven Spielberg [Neeson was nominated for an Oscar after working with the director on 1993's Schindler's List]. He's got that gift. He doesn't talk to them as kids; he talks to them as adults.”

More than three decades since he rose to prominence in 1981's Excalibur, Neeson admits that a few months ago, he finally found himself thinking, ‘I'm really tired’.

“I'd been very, very lucky,” he says, reflecting on the opportunities that have come up over the years. “I also tend to go, ‘Oh my God, they're offering me a film? How much? I'll do it!’”

He still loves his job – ‘between action and cut’ – and while he hasn't lost faith in the industry, there are times he's concerned about its future.

“I'm concerned that with all the technical know-how they have now, with computers and screens of all sizes, that people will stop going out to sit in an empty room with strangers and watch something hopefully magical,” Neeson admits.

“That's still a very important thing.”

Make a fresh start to 2017

We all know crash diets don't work in the long-term - and now there's even more reason to ditch the yo-yo cycle forever, as research links fluctuating weight to serious heart problems. Lisa Salmon looks at the risks and has some top tips for a healthier, sustainable approach to sensible dieting

It's likely you've put on weight over the festive season - and equally likely you'll struggle to lose it. But many people will still embark on New Year diets, possibly losing a bit of timber, and then putting it back on again, in the classic yo-yo fashion.

However, although such yo-yoing is very common, new research suggests it could also be dangerous.

DEATH RISK

A US study found women in the 'normal weight' range who lost and regained weight had about a three-and-a-half times higher risk of sudden cardiac death - where the heart's electrical system abruptly stops working - than women whose weight remained stable.

Yo-yo dieting was also associated with a 66 per cent increased risk of death from coronary heart disease, where blood vessels to the heart become blocked with fat, in the normal weight women.

The research, which studied more than 158,000 post-menopausal women over an 11.4-year period, didn't find an increase in either type of death among overweight or obese women who yo-yo dieted, otherwise known as 'weight cycling'.

"Weight cycling is an emerging global health concern associated with attempts of weight loss, but there have been inconsistent results about the health hazards for those who experience weight cycling behaviour," said Dr Somwail Rasla, lead author of the study at Brown University.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

The research didn't explain how yo-yo dieting might increase the risk of death, but Dr Rasla suggests it could be connected to the possibility that, as people gain weight, cardiac risk factors, such as blood pressure and glucose levels, often increase, and the body eventually makes adjustments to compensate for the changes.

But when people yo-yo diet, the body may not have time to make those adjustments.

Another theory, developed after a trial using mice, suggests yo-yo dieting may have an impact on DNA. "We found that mice exposed to weight cycling behaviours ended up with damage to their DNA," notes Dr Rasla.

DON'T DITCH THE DIET!

However, if you're overweight, it's not wise to completely abandon diets either, as evidence shows that being overweight in mid-life also increases the risk of dying from both types of heart disease.

The best solution, therefore, has to be to embark upon a healthy diet which aims to achieve a steady, regular, small weight loss, rather than the rapid, major loss that a crash diet aims for.

Nutritionist Cassandra Barns points out that as well as negatively impacting physical health, crash diets followed by weight gain can affect mental health, leading to guilt and low self-esteem.

"This can result in an unhealthy relationship with food," she warns. "By cutting back on calories to extreme levels while yo-yo dieting, you can be at risk of malnourishment, and you may be more tempted to overindulge in the likes of alcohol when 'off' your diet."

"Also, when our weight fluctuates regularly, we often diminish muscle mass, which is crucial for a high metabolic rate when resting."

SEVEN YO-YO-PROOF TIPS FOR HEALTHY WEIGHT LOSS

1. Don't starve yourself

If you miss meals or starve yourself, your body will think there's a shortage of food and its response will be to slow down your metabolism and hold onto fat stores. "This type of eating can lead to cravings because blood sugar will be low and your body needs a quick fix," says Shona Wilkinson, a nutritionist at the health and wellbeing shopping site SuperfoodUK.com.

2. Skip fad diets

"Fad diets, especially those that miss out whole food groups, may work temporarily but are usually too difficult to maintain for more than a couple of weeks," says women's health nutritionist and author Dr Marilyn Glenville.

3. Add protein to each meal

Protein slows down the rate the stomach processes food, and slows the passage of the carbohydrates with it, says Ms

Wilkinson. "As soon as you add a protein to a carbohydrate, you change it into a slower releasing carbohydrate, which will make you feel fuller for longer," she explains.

4. Don't eat on the run

Eating while rushing out and about gives your body the message that time's scarce and you're under pressure and stressed, says Dr Glenville. "Furthermore, your digestive system will be less efficient. Make a point of sitting down and eating your food as calmly as possible," she advises.

5. Never skip breakfast

Sleeping makes your metabolism slow right down, and breakfast gets it going again. But it's important to choose healthy breakfast options, such as wholegrain cereals like porridge, or natural dairy products like yoghurt, eggs and fruit. Sugar-laden cereals will make blood sugar rise sharply and drop rapidly, making you feel more hungry quickly, explains Wilkinson.

"The old saying is that breakfast is the most important meal of the day. When you have breakfast, you're literally 'breaking the fast'. But always remember that just as important as having breakfast itself, you need something that will sustain you and keep you feeling fuller longer," she notes.

6. Eat little and often

Keep blood sugar and energy levels stable by eating something every three hours. Eat breakfast, lunch and dinner, plus a mid-morning and mid-afternoon snack. Try not to eat carbohydrates after 6pm. "This will stop those rollercoaster highs and cravings for sweet foods," explains Dr Glenville. "Because your blood sugar isn't allowed to drop, your body will no longer have to ask you for a quick fix. As the blood sugar steadies, so will mood swings."

7. Don't cut out all fat

Fat is an essential part of the diet and shouldn't be avoided, stresses Dr Glenville. However, fat needs to be the right kind, from oily fish, nuts, seeds and seed oils, to get essential omega-3 and 6 fats which are necessary for health. "What we should be avoiding are the processed fats found in junk food and bakery products," she adds.

STAR CARS FOR 2017

STEALTHY: Jaguar's stunning I-PACE is a battery-powered SUV with a range of more than 300 miles on one charge

By Chris Russon

NEW car sales in Britain are booming and buyers have never had it so good in more ways than one. While 2017 looks to be a bumper year for new models including an all-new version of the nation's top seller, the Ford Fiesta, there are some stars in the making from unlikely sources.

Korean car maker Kia will be blazing a trail later in the year with a performance model to rival the likes of the BMW 4 Series and Alfa Romeo will be joining the SUV set with its new Stelvio.

Stalwarts due for replacement in the coming months include the BMW 5 Series, a bigger MINI Countryman estate and at the luxury end of the market Audi will be rolling out its latest A8 saloon.

Land Rover too will be revitalising another iconic British model with the fifth generation of the Discovery – now moving upmarket almost into the Range Rover zone – arriving in the spring.

With personal contract plans enabling more and more motorists to get into the car of their dreams for only a few hundred pounds a month the new car market is changing considerably.

Latest figures from the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders reveal that new car sales in the UK are at a record high with more than 2.5 million models being registered this year up to the end of November.

The Ford Fiesta remains the most popular model already notching up more than 112,000 sales putting it well ahead of its nearest rival, the Vauxhall Corsa on 73,000.

Ford revealed the new Fiesta last month at its European headquarters in Germany and it will be on sale in the spring.

What is different about the new model is a shift towards high end technology and big car levels of refinement in superminis, a trend sure to be followed by the likes of Nissan with its new Micra, also due to arrive early in the new year.

Kia will have a new player in small hatch market too with the updated Rio arriving late in January prior to the release of its new performance-oriented GT model towards the end of the year.

The GT, which is likely to include a feisty V6 engine in the line up, will have its world premiere in the next couple of weeks at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit.

British-built models are now in high demand and as well as the MINI and the new Discovery, Honda will be launching a new version of the Swindon-made Civic which is also due for release in the springtime ahead of a new hot hatch in the shape of the latest Civic Type R.

Jaguar will also be turning on the style with the next generation XF Sportbrake estate which is due in the summer while before the year is out it will be blazing a trail into the fast growing electric car market with the stunning I-PACE – a battery-powered SUV with a range of more than 300 miles on a single charge.

Another head-turner which is due to arrive before Easter is the Mazda MX-5 RF, the hardtop version of the world's favourite roadster. It has a foldaway metal roof and a fastback design which is going to set it apart in the sports car market.

Other models to watch for in 2017 include a heavily reworked Volkswagen Golf, Vauxhall's new – and larger – Insignia and a coupe version of the Range Rover Sport.

That one will be after a chunk of the performance SUV market which Alfa Romeo is targeting with the Stelvio, the Italian brand's first premium crossover and with impressive high performance credentials.

Economic uncertainties may still exist across the Euro-zone but for the foreseeable future the auto industry will remain a pillar of UK plc allowing drivers to enjoy the best models yet.

BIGGER: Vauxhall's 2017 version of the Insignia is larger than its predecessor

COMING SOON: Nissan's new Micra will debut in 2017 and is likely to feature big car refinement

ONE LAST JOB

The gripping story of Brian Reader, Britain's most prolific, old-school crook

Branded 'The Master' and 'a Gentleman Thief' Brian is a true British crime character. Gang insiders, family, friends and detectives talk for the first time about Reader's six-decade career. The authors reveal the Hatton Garden gang's links to an unsolved gangland murder, bent cops, police supergrasses and an alleged establishment cover-up. The book also includes new details about Basil, dubbed 'The Ghost' after he became the only gang member to escape justice.

ONE LAST JOB

The gripping story of Brian Reader, Britain's most prolific, old-school crook

Branded 'The Master' and 'a Gentleman Thief' Brian is a true British crime character. Gang insiders, family, friends and detectives talk for the first time about Reader's six-decade career. The authors reveal the Hatton Garden gang's links to an unsolved gangland murder, bent cops, police supergrass and an alleged establishment cover-up. The book also includes new details about Basil, dubbed 'The Ghost' after he became the only gang member to escape justice.

'We need to change our ways'

Hawks must fix away form

By Matt Storey

matt.storey@hertsessexnews.co.uk

DANNY CHAPMAN says Harlow Town's players and management staff have spoken about the need to improve their away form if they want to continue to push for a Ryman League Premier Division play-off spot.

The Hawks picked up four points from their two home games over the New Year period, but lost 3-0 at Enfield Town on Boxing Day.

Stanley Muguo and Khale Da Costa scored in the 2-1 win over Leatherhead on Saturday, with Alex Read and Da Costa finding the net in the 2-2 draw with Canvey Island on Monday.

It means they are ninth in the table, just five points outside the play-off spots, but with only nine of their 37 points coming away from The Harlow Arena, Chapman wants his players to change their mindset away from home.

"We need to change our mental approach away from home," the Hawks boss explained.

"We go into home games full of confidence, but we are not doing that away from home currently.

"If we go into away games believing that we can get a positive result, then we'll see a change in our form.

"Our home form has been fantastic, second to none really, and we are only just outside the play-offs.

"But we've had a chat amongst ourselves about performances away from home. We need to approach away games in the same way that we do for games at Harlow."

Chapman's side travel to Wingate & Finchley on Saturday, who, despite sitting 17th, went unbeaten over the Christmas and New Year period and picked up an impressive draw at Havant & Waterlooville on Monday.

The Harlow boss added "They've improved massively recently, as their results show.

"They'll be full of confidence on the back of their draw down at Havant, and they are a team who like to pass and move the ball quickly.

"If we go in there with the right mentality and we take the game to them, not the other way round, then I'm confident we can pick up three points."

Respectable

Despite throwing away a two-goal lead against Canvey on Monday, Chapman felt four points was a 'respectable' return from three quick fixtures over the festive period.

"Boxing Day and the 3-0 defeat was bitterly disappointing, then we put in one of our best performances of the season against Leatherhead and could have won by more.

"The draw on Monday isn't a bad result. With games coming quickly at this time of year you get plenty of odd results across all leagues.

"Four points is a respectable return and, like I said before, sitting five points off the play-offs is not bad at all."

Keeper 'may not play again' after injury

HARLOW TOWN goalkeeper Ed Thompson may not play football again after being told he needs reconstructive surgery on his knee.

Thompson picked up the injury in the Essex Senior Cup game against Tilbury last month, and boss Danny Chapman only found out the extent of the damage yesterday.

"He needs an operation on his knee and he probably won't play again," Chapman explained.

"It's disastrous for him and for us, it's really disappointing. It happened a month ago but it's been so swollen that the MRI could not take place for a while.

"He's obviously gutted, and so are we."

The news came just two days after Canvey Island produced a second half comeback to deny the Hawks three points in their first game of 2017.

Alex Read and Khale Da Costa had put the Hawks 2-0 up against the Ryman Premier Division's bottom side, but George Sykes and Ryan Blackman found the net in the first ten minutes of the second period to draw Canvey level.

Chapman admitted the Hawks had taken too long to adjust to Canvey's two half-time changes.

He added: "They made the changes and shocked us a little bit for the first ten minutes of the second period.

"We didn't adjust quickly enough to the change of formation and, unfortunately, they found the net twice in that period."

Powerful

The Hawks started brightly, Bamba Ngamb's powerful header crashed into the crossbar in the opening ten minutes before Fabian Simms had a goal disallowed for a foul on Canvey keeper Lewis Moore.

Harlow eventually took the lead in simple fashion after 37 minutes. David Hughes' long punt up field bounced over Canvey's defence allowing Read to pounce on the loose ball and calmly finish past Moore.

Hughes and Layne Eadie combined to clear Sykes' effort off the line just one minute later and Chapman's men doubled their lead just before the break.

Read picked out Da Costa with a pinpoint pass and his effort found the bottom corner.

The visitors made two changes at the break and pulled a goal back within two minutes of the restart as Sykes picked up the ball in the area and rifled a ball into the top corner.

Frankie Merrifield's header was a whisker away from bringing Canvey level three minutes later but they did not have to wait long for the equaliser.

On 55 minutes Blackman lashed a shot into the top corner from the edge of the area, to once again leave Hughes with no chance and complete the comeback.
